Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

Super Bowl 50 Weather Situational Awareness

In collaboration with local, state and federal partners, the San Francisco Bay Area National Weather Service (NWS) Weather Forecast Office (WFO) will provide enhanced decision support services to Emergency Management partners in support of their public safety efforts around the National Football League's (NFL) Super Bowl 50 and events leading up to the NFL championship game being held at Levi's Stadium in Santa Clara, California.

We will continue to send out a morning email briefing to serve as a broad weather outlook for the greater San Francisco Bay Area through at least Feb 8. If updates are made, an afternoon email briefing will also be issued. Additional forecast briefings will be disseminated based on partner request and/or weather demands.

Weather Summary

- High pressure will be in place through Tuesday delivering dry conditions and sunny skies. The stable conditions will trap pollutants in the sheltered lower levels like San Jose during the early morning hours resulting in areas of haze and air quality indices in the moderate category. Temperatures will be well above normal topping out in the upper 60s to mid 70s for Sunday and Monday. Overnight lows will cool into the 40s at night. Beach hazards for rip currents and large shore breaks will remain in place today with these hazards waning Sunday afternoon.
- Minimal weather impacts expected today, especially around Levi Stadium.
- Biggest change from yesterday's weather will be wind gusts between 10 and 20 mph possible in San Francisco Area between 1000 hours and 1700 hours. Stronger wind gusts expected on the higher terrain and surrounding hills. Some impacts to aviation from gusty northeast winds Sunday morning and afternoon.
- Dangerous Beach Conditions ending Sunday afternoon: Heightened threat of rip currents and large shore break this morning through this afternoon. With the near record highs and many visitors to the area, there will be a concern for dangerous beach conditions.

3 Day Area Forecast for SANTA CLARA (LEVI STADIUM)

Today: Sunny, high near 71. Northwest wind 5 to 11 mph.

Tonight: Clear, with a low around 49. West northwest wind around 6 mph becoming calm in the evening.

Monday: Sunny, with a high near 73. Calm wind becoming northwest around 5 mph.

Monday Night: Clear, with low around 50. Light and variable wind.

3 Day Area Forecast for the Greater San Francisco Bay Area:

Today: Sunny, with highs mostly in the upper 60s. Northwest wind between 5 and 9 mph.

Tonight: Clear, with lows mainly in the upper 40s. Calm wind becoming east northeast between 4 and 7 mph.

Monday: Sunny, with highs mostly in the lower 70s. East wind around 5 mph becoming north northwest.

Monday Night: Clear, with lows mostly in the upper 40s. East northeast wind between 5 and 7 mph.

Tuesday: Sunny, with highs mainly in the upper 60s. Light north northeast wind.

Tuesday Night: Mostly clear, with lows around 50.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

High pressure will bring mostly dry weather and slightly above normal temperatures to northwest California over the next several days. A weak front will bring the next chance for light rain late next week.

Medford Weather:

Dry conditions and low level offshore flow will persist into Tuesday and temperatures will warm to above seasonal values especially along the South coast and over the ridges. Mostly clear skies will prevail over most of the area.

Reno Weather:

High pressure building over the great basin will keep dry conditions in place with generally light winds and valley inversions. A steady warming trend is expected for the next few days, with daytime temperatures remaining well above normal through the upcoming week. A weak low pressure may bring light rain and snow showers and slight cooling by next weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

Strong ridge of high pressure will build today into Monday producing offshore winds and near record warmth across the Bay Area and Central Coast. The ridge will weaken by midweek but high pressure stays in control with continued dry and mild weather heading into next weekend.

Sacramento Weather:

There will be dry and mild weather for interior Northern California for the next week.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

High pressure will continue to bring dry weather to the Central California interior for the next several days with patchy night and morning fog in the San Joaquin valley. A day to day warming trend will bring high temperatures above normal through the middle of next week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure and gusty offshore winds will bring well above normal temperatures with possible record temperatures through early next week. The high will weaken towards the end of the week for a cooling trend however temperatures will remain above normal.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

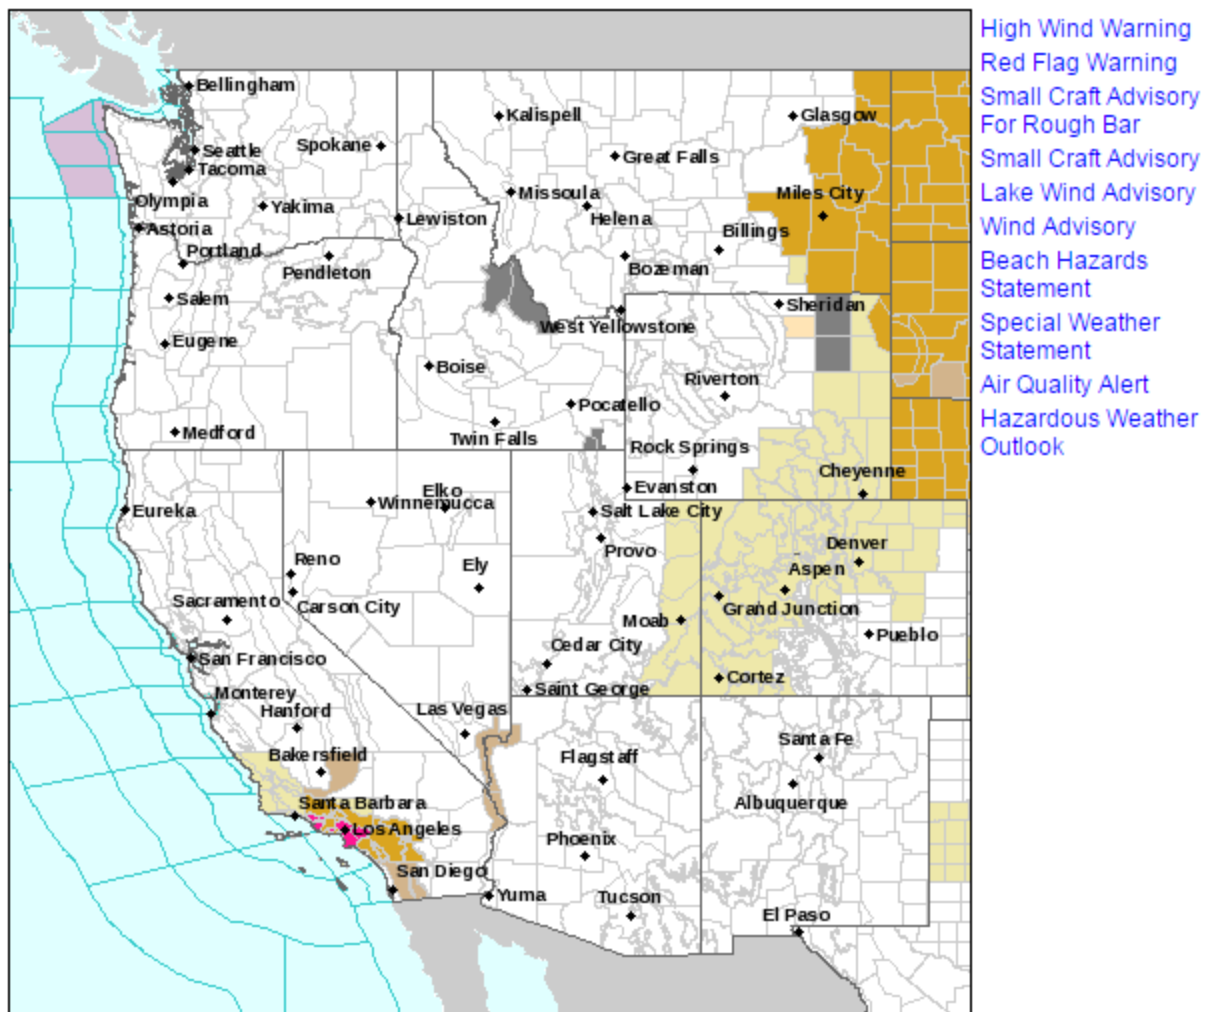

Warm and dry with gusty northeasterly winds through Tuesday. The strongest winds will develop late tonight through Monday morning especially below Cajon pass and the Santa Ana Mountains and foothills. Temperatures will be well above seasonal averages with the warmest days Monday and Tuesday when daytime temperatures could reach 90 in a few locations in the valleys and inland Orange County. The second half of the week will be slightly cooler though temperatures will remain well above seasonal averages.

Southeast California Weather:

High pressure will remain the dominant weather feature over the Southwestern United States through much of the upcoming week. This will result in a prolonged period of sunny skies and above normal temperatures along with relatively light winds.
